9	Albanian Feudal organization (Pashallëqet) During the development of this lecture, the Albanian feudal pashas will be treated focusing on the pasha of Shkodra and the pasha of Ioannina. The Pasha of Shkodra (1757–1831) was one semi-independent pasha under the Ottoman Empire, born of the Albanian family of Bushatllinjëve. The original territory of the pasha was located around Shkodra and its surroundings, in today's territory of Northern Albania and southeastern Albania. Under the rule of Mahmud Pasha Bushatlli reached its peak and at this time part of the pasha was a large part of Albania, Kosovo, the western part of Macedonia and the southeastern part of Montenegro. Mehmet saw the Elder, the founder of the Paschal Shkodra. As a result of economic development, large feudal families began to gain power as well politically and secede from the Ottoman state. Whereas, the Paschal of Ioannina is closely related to the name of Ali Pasha of Tepelena. He was born in 1740 into a military feudal family. It was quickly spotted for his ability, energy and ingenuity. He put these in the service of his ambitious plans, by used all means: violence, cunning and family ties to other local feudal lords. In year 1784 Ali receives the rank of pasha and military commander near the vali of Rumelia. Yes this year provided the government of the Delvina sanjak, and later became commander of the gorges (Derven) and governor of the the sanjak of Trikala (Greece). With the support of the artisanal-commercial bourgeoisie of Ioannina, he gave up the sanjak of the same name (1787) The High Gate (Ottoman Empire) was occupied in war with Austria therefore recognized Ali as the rightful ruler. Special attention will be paid to the birth and the development of these two pashas; political organization and developed law 1. 12	Albanian Independent state during 1912 – 1914. In the years 1912-1914 Albanians for the first time started the process of creating a nation state. This process it turned out to be extremely difficult because the cultural and political preparation of the Albanian nation still did not exist reached the right level to face state formation and because external factors hindering and dissolvers turned out to be very powerful. The Provisional Government of Vlora that was formed after the proclamation of independence on 28 November 1912 made efforts and achieved some success in institution building national and at the beginning of the deosmanization process. But she was hit hard by the Powers' refusal Great to know as well as from confrontation with internal particularist opposition forces, where most the most prominent of them was the Elders of Central Albania headed by Esat Pasha Toptani. The lecture will address the circumstances that led to the declaration of independence and the formation of the government of Vlora. A special attention will be paid to the problems of the Albanian state in the policy of the great powers and International Control Commission. Also, the lecture will address the Albanian state under Vidin and the Organic Statute of Albania. 1.
